Q: prove 1 subgroup of a cyclic group is cyclic. let n be a natural number and let G be a cyclic group of order n . then prove that G has a subgroup of order n . i have proved that G is elementary abelian group of order n (the idea is from the theorem that every elementary abelian group of order n is cyclic). but i don't know how to prove the above thesis. A: The idea is to prove that the subgroup generated by g in G (which we will call H) is cyclic of order dividing n . Since H is cyclic of order less than n , we see easily that it must be contained in the center of G . To see that it is contained in the center, note that H is the union of G and gH . g is not contained in any other coset in G
