Whether you're an opera singer, an international corporation, an MBA student or a kid with something to prove, Internet speed can affect your life in positive or negative ways. Speed comparison infographic Mobile data can be hard to come by when it comes to the world's most populous country. Last December, the nation experienced a record 28,702 international mobile data data outages, which were caused by the country's under-development 4G networks. In December 2015, only 6.3 percent of Hong Kong residents had 4G smartphones. All of this meant that only a small percentage of Hong Kong residents were able to connect to the Internet at 4G speeds, and mobile data outages were frequent. Gadgets360 took a look at different aspects of Hong Kong's Internet service -- from network speed, to how busy the networks were on the busiest days -- and compared it to comparable cities across the globe. In terms of speed, Hong Kong ranked as the 82nd fastest region in terms of peak download speeds. This is high for a city that's as densely populated as Hong Kong, but it's still slower than the likes of Los Angeles and London. The average time it takes for data to go from server to handset (assuming the server is located in Hong Kong) is around 12 seconds, slightly slower than London and New York but still a long way off the global

A: The Intel driver is referring to an old beta version of the driver (h6a-pci-0011.2). You are using version 52.44.16. This is the newest version. Also, are you sure you're running the latest version of Windows 10 (1903)? It would be a good idea to update your drivers and reboot.

San Jose State's Matthews named to D-II All-America team SAN JOSE -- San Jose State quarterback David Matthews has been named the D-II Player of the Year, it was announced Tuesday by the Football Writers Association of America. Matthews joins U.C. Davis safety Ashtin Mathis as the only players from the Mountain West to make the list of 120, the association said in its 2012 pre-season poll. The senior from South Lake Tahoe, Calif., was a two-time winner of the Watterson Trophy as the national junior college player of the year. His totals this season included 1,436 passing yards and 16 touchdowns against just two interceptions. He completed nearly 75 percent of his passes. Matthews began his career at Independence (Calif.) College and transferred to Sierra College in 2013. He threw for 1,722 yards with 16 touchdowns and just six interceptions. He is the ninth player in San Jose State history to earn the award. Joining Matthews on the all-decade team, which includes seniors from the final 10 years of the D-II era, are Monte Vista (Colorado) quarterback Quinton Carter (QB); San Diego State quarterback Russell Israel (QB); Eastern New Mexico quarterback Michael Goodrich (QB); Westfield (N.J.) linebacker Micah Rhodes (LB); Colorado State quarterback Austin Allen (QB); North Dakota State fullback Zach Kipke (FB); Illinois State safety/linebacker David Ross (S/LB); and Montana State quarterback Will Oliver (QB). Over the final 30 years of D-II football, the all-decade team has included nearly 25 quarterbacks, five running backs, three receivers, two tight ends, one lineman, one kicker and one defensive back. There is a first-time all-decade team as well, which features eight defensive players. The No. 1 cornerback is Auburn's Christopher St. John (Auburn), the No. 2 safety is LSU's Travis Stevens (Southern Illinois).Q:
