Create and manage your very own team of the world's very best players and compete in matches in three match modes against friendlies, real opposition, and your own created teams - it's now easier than ever to be the ultimate gamer. FIFA Mobile - Take on the challenge of becoming the player people choose and turn clubs into global brands. Join the game and compete in FIFA's iconic tournaments with your friends in the new eSports mode. Then in single-player mode, use your skills in the new Freekick mode to develop your signature free kick into your very own arsenal of deadly strikes. Take the challenge of becoming the player that people choose, in FIFA Mobile! PLUS there is all the content in Career Mode you have come to know and love from FIFA on consoles, including the all new POTM system and the all new One Touch Game Face Technology. FIFA Online LIVE can be downloaded from the App Store or Google Play I've been playing for a few weeks now, and while I thought this edition was good, there were some issues, and I had to adjust to them. It's basically a mix of Ultimate Team and FIFA Online, meaning you can play with a ton of new EA backed content and the ability to play online with opponents from all around the world. I started with the Australian teams, and I had no idea what I was doing. I had to play a few matches against my friend who's the only expert, and then when he was out of town, I was joining different online matchmaking servers with very unskilled players, making tons of mistakes and not learning the game to save my life. I'm sure I'll get a lot better with time and a ton of matches, but right now I'm still getting the hang of how everything works and how to counter different things. I'd say the new Champions League mode is the most noteworthy change. The mode is basically a very quick way to go through the 2013/2014 season. You're able to jump into the Champion's League group stage matches and play through the group stages. It has a really interesting single match system, meaning you'll basically fill a fake player's stats based on who you played. You'll also be able to earn whatever the team scores, and earn bonuses based on goals, and general play. I played a match

What's new:

- New Gameplay improvements:

- Blocking and passing accuracy: Improved automatic blocking models will keep defenders away, and ensure that the best passer in the world improves your marksmanship.
- Aggressive animations: will cause defenders to move with a more threatening attitude, which will make them easier to mark while avoiding contact with opponents. Stronger and agile players will also have even more highly-detailed animations to further emphasise their athleticism.

- Dynamic Player Interactions:

- Including Dynamic Pro Zones:

- A new experience in gameplay related to the addition of PRO ZONES will be introduced in FIFA 22. The concept of PRO ZONES works like an ultimate band-aid to plain old penalties, spot kicks, and corner-kicks. Play the ball inside the box, but only inside the indicated area can be classed as a PRO ZONE. Managers will now have to weigh whether to kick the ball or use an expert field player. As another way to promote goal kicks, improving the field player's chances to step in front of the goalkeeper.

- Improved strategic gameplay:

- A new system has been added called 'babysitting tactic', which will allow players to dictate tactics in the midfield with adapted positioning.

- The new 'Crossing and Defending' mechanic removes the necessity of positioning a defender to defend against a cross and will in turn open up the game allowing managers to simply focus on counter-attacking and position players in the final third with more freedom.
